The George C. Marshall European Center is an internationally recognized security studies center of excellence that promotes dialogue and understanding among the global community of nations. This reputation rests on an enduring bilateral commitment between the United States and Germany, coupled with the Center's international staff and faculty.

Since the first security studies event took place in 1993, more than 200 resident programs have been held in Garmisch-Partenkirchen with more than 12,500 civilian and military graduates from more than 150 states. The Marshall Center connects people to create positive change for a more stable world.

The ideal PASS participant is a junior or mid-level civilian government official, military or security force service member, or government academic who aspires to higher leadership positions and realizes that a network of trustworthy international partnerships is the foundation for success.

PASS strives for a diverse participant body. Applications from women are strongly encouraged.
