

James Kenneth Wither

Professor of National Security Studies
Director Senior Fellowship Programs

George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies

Professor James Wither has been a faculty member at the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies since 2000. He is Professor of National Security Studies and Director of Senior Fellows Programs. Since 2008, he has also been a member of the teaching faculty of the Program in Terrorism and Security Studies.

Professor Wither holds an MSc in strategic studies from the University of Wales, a master's in business administration from the Open University, UK, a BA (Hons) in history from Kings College, University of London and a postgraduate diploma in further and higher education, from Garnett College, University of London. He also completed the Basic and Advanced Negotiation Workshops at Harvard University Law School.

Professor Wither is a retired British Army officer and former researcher in 20th century warfare at the Imperial War Museum in London. His research and teaching interests lie in the fields of warfare studies, international terrorism, national security strategy, security sector reform and international conflict negotiations. He has taught terrorism, warfare and related security studies subjects at a wide variety of institutions, including the FBI Academy, the UK Defence Academy, the NATO School, the NATO Centre of Excellence - Defence Against Terrorism (COE-DAT), the Geneva Centre for Security Policy and various staff colleges and military universities in Europe and Eurasia.

His publications include book chapters, monographs and journal articles. The latter include papers for Small Wars and Insurgencies, Global War Studies, Studies in Conflict and Terrorism, European Security, Prism, Perspectives on Terrorism and Parameters. Professor Wither is co-editor of the book "Combating Transnational Terrorism," which was published in January 2016.

