

GEORGE C. MARSHALL
EUROPEAN CENTER FOR SECURITY STUDIES

James Kenneth Wither

Professor National Security Studies

George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies

Professor James Wither has been a faculty member at the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies since 2000. Since 2008, he has been a member of the teaching faculty of the Program in Terrorism and Security Studies. Professor Wither holds an MSc in strategic studies, a Master's in Business Administration (MBA), a BA (Hons) in history, and a postgraduate diploma in further and higher education. He also completed the basic and advanced negotiation workshops at Harvard University Law School.

Professor Wither is a retired British Army officer and former researcher in 20th Warfare at the Imperial War Museum in London. His research and teaching interests lie in the fields of warfare studies, international terrorism, national security strategy, and international conflict negotiations. He has taught at a variety of institutions including the FBI Academy, the UK Defence Academy, the NATO School, The NATO Centre of Excellence – Defence Against Terrorism (COE-DAT), The Geneva Centre for Security Policy and various staff colleges and military universities in Europe and Eurasia.

Professor Wither has published widely, including articles in RUSI Journal, Defence Studies, Global War Studies, Small Wars and Insurgencies, Studies in Conflict and Terrorism, European Security, Prism and Small Wars Journals. He is co-editor of "Combating Transnational Terrorism" (2016).